You can answer the question using text editor

or write answer on paper and click photo using Choose File option

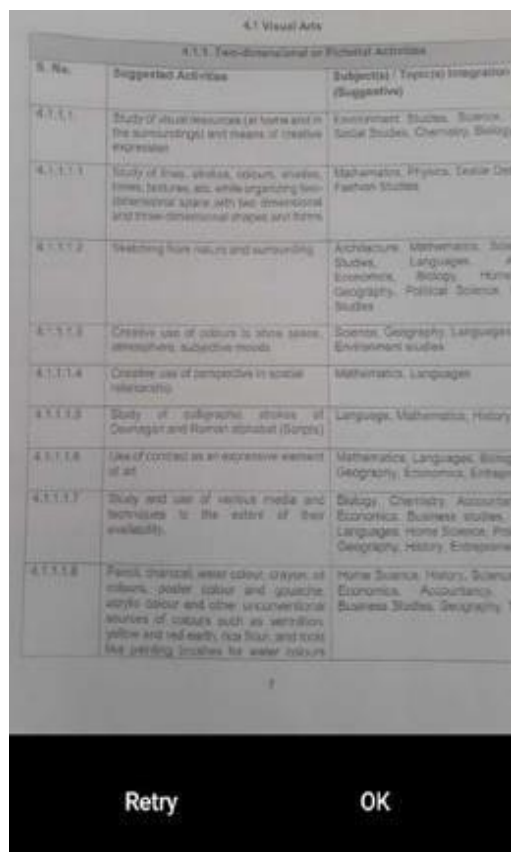

A screenshot of the same interface as above, but with a blue arrow pointing specifically to the 'Choose file' button. The rest of the interface, including the toolbar, text area, and navigation buttons, is identical to the previous screenshot.
